THE SONG OF THE ANVIL.

BY N. G. SHEPHERD.

Within the village smithy
Right merrily I ring,
And under the stroke of the hammer
A tuneful song I sing.

Red glows the wide-mouthed furnace,
The heaving bellows roar—
You can hear their lungs panting
Outside the open door.

The smith is stalwart and mighty—
He lifts his sledge on high,
Then lets it fall on the iron,
And the sparks all round him fly.

With a ready voice I answer,
And cheer him with my song;
I sing to him while he labors—
I sing to him all day long.

His arm is brawny and powerful,
Its strength full well I know;
He strikes with an earnest purpose,
And heavily falls his blow.

The children stand in the doorway,
For they love to see him swing
His sledge across his shoulder,
While cheerily I sing.

My voice goes out to the village;
You can hear it far away,
As I cheer the smith in his labor
Through all the live-long day.

With every blow from his hammer
An answering note I sound,
That over again is repeated
Wherever an echo is found.

Oh, ye who are sorely smitten
By the iron hand of fate,
Abide your time in patience,
Ye have not long to wait.

Oh, young man, eager and hopeful,
Oh, young man, valiant and strong,
When the blows fall fast and thickest
Make answer with a song!

TRIP LIGHTLY.

Trip lightly over trouble,
Trip lightly over wrong;
We only make grief double
By dwelling on it long.

Why clasp woe's hand so tightly;
Why sigh o'er blossoms dead?
Why cling to forms unsightly?
Why not seek joy instead?

Trip lightly o'er sorrow,
Though all the day be dark,
The sun may shine to-morrow,
And gaily sing the lark.

Fair hope has not departed,
Though roses may have fled,
Then never be down-hearted,
But look for joy instead.

Trip lightly o'er sadness,
Stand not to rail at doom,
We've pearls to string of gladness,
On this side of the tomb.

Whilst stars are nightly shining
And heaven is over head;
Encourage not repining,
But look for joy instead.

ALL CONFUSION, OR COURTING UP NORTH.

Kate Blake was the only daughter of Jacob Blake, the miser of West Brooks.

She was more than commonly pretty, and her frank engaging manners, enhanced the charm of her golden hair, pearly skin, and eyes like the blue sky of summer.

At her father's death she should be heiress of the nice little sum of seventy thousand dollars, and though men generally profess not to be influenced by pecuniary matters in affairs of love, it is to be supposed that this prospective wealth by no means lessened the number of her adorers. Among those most ardent, and perhaps sincere, was Will Dartmouth, with a heart larger than his purse, and very little thought or care for consequences.

Fortunately, old Jacob never suspected the partiality of his daughter for Will; he would have put her on bread and water, before he would have consented to the slightest intimacy with Will Dartmouth.

Jacob Blake was not in favor of marriage. Those who knew his circumstances were not surprised at this for, to use a phrase more expressive than elegant, Mrs. Blake was a Tartar, with temper enough for two Tartars.

Old Jacob had to "walk spanish" for the most part, or suffer the consequences, which usually descended upon his head in the shape of any domestic utensil, which happened to be lying around handy.

A maiden sister of Mr. Blake resided in the family, whose principal business seemed to be to act sort of echo to her brother and his wife. What they thought she thought too.

She regarded it as a primary sin for Kate to associate with young men, and this doctrine was so perseveringly drilled into her niece, who, though she never dissented, had her own idea on the subject.

One day Mr. Blake and his wife went to Dedham to attend a fair, and Miss Peggy being absent at a friend's, Kate was left alone. Will felt perfectly secure in stopping a little while after tea, and he and Kate were having a jolly time in popping corn in the old fashioned frying pan over the huge wood fire, when there was a sound of voices at the door.

"Good gracious!" cried Kate, turning white with alarm; "there is Aunt Peggy. Oh, Will! what shall we do? and father will be furious! Get under the lounge, quick! Oh, Will, do, for my sake!"

Will could not withstand the pleading in Kate's eyes, and he deposited himself in the designated place.

Kate put out the light, and darted into an adjoining room, and in a moment was apparently asleep.

Peggy's voice was heard in the hall. "Be careful, Mr. Pike. There is a loose board there. I don't want to disturb my niece. Softly—it may crack."

"Peggy, dear, where are you?" responded the squeaking voice of Squire Pike, widower of a year: "I can't tell which way you've gone."

"There, Daniel, be easy. Good heavens! Daniel Pike, Well, I never!" and a report burst upon the air like the uncorking of a champagne bottle.

"Oh, my!" cried aunt Peggy, "what would my brother say? I declare I haven't been kissed by a man since"

"Let Jacob mind his own business," retorted the Squire. "You and I can take care of ours without his help;" and there followed a report similar to the first, only a little louder.

"Do be quiet, Daniel, and let me get a light. Set right down there before the fire, and make yourself at home, Daniel."

A light was soon procured. Peggy divested herself of her wrappings, and blushing like a young girl in her teens, sat down opposite the Squire.

"It's a pleasant evening," said Peggy, by way of opening the conversation.

"Very," replied the Squire, drawing his arm over her back.

"O, good gracious, Daniel! don't set quite so nigh me. I—that is, I don't consider it strictly proper."

"Mercy! what's that?"

Both listened attentively.

"It was the wind rattling against the window, I guess," said the Squire. Don't go to getting so nervous, Peggy."

"I thought it was Kate waking up, and if she should, I should never hear the last of it."

"Hark, there is a noise—I—"

"Gracious earth! it's bells. It's Jake and his wife coming back. What shall I do? Oh, Squire, 'tain't right for us to be nothing one to t'other. Do help me! What shall I do?"

"Tell me where to go, Peggy! Say the word, I'll go anywhere for your sake, if it's up the chimney."

"Under the lounge, quick! It's wide, and will hold well. Quick, don't delay a minute."

The Squire obeyed, but the space was so well filled that it was with difficulty he could squeeze himself into so small a compass. And just as he succeeded, Mr. Blake and his wife entered the room, floundering along in the dark, for Peggy had deemed it best to extinguish the light.

Jake made for the fire, which still glowed with red coals, stumbled over the cricket, and fell headlong against Peggy, who was standing bolt upright, trying to collect her scattered senses.

"The deuce!" cried Jake, "look out there, old woman, or you'll be down over me. It's as dark as the dickens here, and I've fell over the rocking chair or the churn, I can't tell which."

"Hello! what's that?" reaching out his hand to feel his situation, and coming in contact with the bearded face of the Squire. "By jolly! it's got whiskers; Peg! Peggy where are you? and where is Kate? and what's this?"

The Squire did not relish this assault upon his higher suit appendages, and by the ways of retaliation, he gave a series of kicks which hit Will Dartmouth in the regions of the stomach and stirred up his bile.

"Look here, old chap!" exclaimed Will, "I'm perfectly willing to share my quarters with you, seein' as we're both in for it; but you'd better not undertake to do that again."

"Heavens!" ejaculated Peggy, "whose voice is that?"

"That's what I want to know," said Jake, struggling for an upright position.

"Hello! who's fell down over my legs?"

"I'll let you know who's down and who's up!" said the voice of Mrs. Blake—and the old lady scrambled up, only to go down again over a chair. "Jake where are you? Get up this instant or I'll shake your breath out when I get to my feet again."

Jake started to obey, and just then Tige, the watch dog, who, hearing the fuss, managed to break loose from his lair, rushed upon the scene, and set up his best bow wow.

The Squire had a mortal horror of dogs, and neither fear nor love was enough to keep him quiescent now. He sprung to his feet with a yell; Will followed.

Kate, full of alarm for her loved, hopped out of bed and appeared, with flaming tallow dip—Peggy flung her arms around the Squire with a cry of terror, and Jake was silent with amazement.

Mrs. Blake was the only one who possessed her wits. She seized the corn-popper, and laid it about her right and left with vigor.

Her aim was not always correct, and in consequence she smashed the looking glass into a thousand pieces, and knocked down the clock from its shelf, and demolished two bowls and a pitcher that were quietly reposing on the mantel.

The squire broke from Peggy's embrace and dashed out of the window. Will followed him, and Mrs. Blake would have pursued by the same outlet, but she was a little too large to get through with ease.

A dreaded council was held; Jake stormed; Mrs. Blake threatened, and at last Katie and Peggy confessed; and Jake and his wife were so rejoiced at the prospect of getting rid of Peggy that they forgave their daughter and took Will Dartmouth home at the end of the year.

And in due time Peggy and the Squire were made one flesh.

The Moral Telescope.

Ordinarily, the birth of a child attracts but little notice, but at the birth of Jesus, the God incarnate, hell was moved to its center, devils were alarmed—heaven wondered and angels sang in ecstatic joy, in anticipation of wonderful and glorious results, the triumphs of Emanuel in the kingdom of grace, and this final victory over Satan, sin and sorrow in the kingdom of glory.

When we turned our lens down the pathway of this wonderful being, from the cradle to the tomb and the resurrection, we were struck with wonder at every step. Here we saw humanity weeping in its purity at the grave of Lazarus, and over the anticipated destruction of Jerusalem; there we saw Him meeting the funeral of the only son of the widow of Nain, "and when the Lord saw her he had compassion on her, and said unto her, weep not. He came and touched the bier, and they that bare him stood still, and He said, Young man, I say unto you arise, and he that was dead sat up, and he began to speak, and He delivered him to his mother." Was there ever such a sight? Humanity "weeping with them that wept," and God in hypostatical union with flesh and blood, opening the grave, robbing death of his victims, and emancipating the dead by uniting soul and body. We have seen Him fasting forty days and forty nights, cruelly tempted of the devil, but sustained by Divine power. We have seen Him moving amongst the poor and needy, ministering to their necessities with the meekness of a lamb. We have seen Him upon the mount preaching that wonderful sermon which contains more sound philosophy and pure morality than all the utterances of all the philosophers and sages of antiquity for thousands of years. Then we have seen Him performing those wonderful miracles that astonished some and convinced others of His heavenly mission. Again, we have seen Him clad in all the panoply of heaven, rebuking devils and proud and wicked man with such Divine authority that they quailed and shrank from His presence.

We have seen Him on that dark and gloomy night in which He was betrayed into the hands of sinners, gathering His disconsolate disciples around him, instituting the Lord's supper, and putting into their hands the morsels of His broken body and shed blood, to be taken as such until His second coming. Thence we followed Him to Gethsemane, witnessed His agony, as He had assumed the sins and sorrows of an elect world, and the frowns of an offended God and Father crushing great sweat-like drops of blood from every pore. Thence dragged by ungodly soldiers to Caiaphas, to be mocked, spit upon, buffeted and condemned; and then sent bound to Pilate the Governor for final sentence, who handed Him over to the mob to be put to death. And after seeing that God, by whom all things were created and by whom a universe is sustained, submitting to the corrupted judgment of wicked judges, we have seen Him dragged thence to Golgotha, and there crucified amongst thieves, and consigned to the grave; but on the morning of the third day He rose from the dead, a victor over death, the grave, and all His enemies. Then it was that Satan felt a shock in his vast empire, such as he had never felt since he fell from the battlement of heaven as the first rebel in God's universe. Then he felt that he was in the grasp of Jehovah and that all his promptings of wicked instruments for the destruction of the long looked for Messiah were about to be overruled for the final overthrow of his own kingdom.

Is it any wonder that fallen men should be sceptics, in view of the wonderful, sublime and mysterious plan of redemption devised in the depths of eternity and consummated in time, when the Sun of Righteousness rose in Judea? Or is it any wonder that poor deluded mortals, sold under sin, their souls out of harmony with God, with His law, and out of harmony with themselves, with their understandings darkened by sin, their emotions perverted and their wills corrupted, should revolt against such a plan of salvation as that proposed by the Prince of Peace? But is it any wonder that weary pilgrims into whose benighted souls a ray of divine light has penetrated and has revealed to them their lost and helpless condition, should flee for refuge to the hope set before them in the gospel, especially when their souls are sick of sin and sorrow? And when it is discovered that time is a narrow isthmus between two eternities, that earth is only a vestibule through which they are hurried into eternity, and that their character as formed here will either usher them into eternal rest and ecstatic joy, or into the abode of eternal despair, exposed to that death which can never die, the highest possible motive is presented to the weary soul to take refuge in Christ, and joyfully accept and appropriate His imputed righteousness to themselves, as their only hope, in order that they may rest in His bosom, which is the very temple of benevolence, for evermore.

When Jean Jacques Rousseau, the most sentimental, licentious and eloquent of French infidels, looked thro' our telescope he beheld in the person of Jesus Christ such a simplicity, lowliness, and yet such a sublimity, that for the moment he was convinced of the unity of God and man in the same person. He saw clearly that had you collected all the graces and all the virtues of all the sons and all the daughters of Adam, and concentrated them in one person, that person would be mean when compared with Emanuel.

In a lucid moment, when his judgment prevailed over his corrupt emotions, he exclaimed: "The gospel must be true; it would be less difficult to act it than to write it as a fiction, for whilst Socrates died like a philosopher Jesus Christ died like a God."

There is such a charm in literary acumen as to draw thousands in pursuit of erudition; but no flights of imagination, no scientific attainment or mental improvement can satisfy a human soul longing for immortality.—Hence we find that many a classical student who had spent the midnight oil in the study of Homer's Iliad, who subsequently turned with disgust from his Jupiter, Juno and other distorted gods, in order to seek and serve the only living and true God, their Creator, Preserver and their only Redeemer. They have averted their eyes from the bloody Ajax, Hector and Agomemnon; to the bleeding Jesus, and found that peace to their souls at the foot of the cross, which could not be found elsewhere this side heaven.—Thus when rays of Divine light have shone through our telescope, it has rolled back the natural darkness of the mind, let in new light upon the understanding, chastened the emotions, directed the volitions of the will to proper objects, and brought the soul into harmony with itself, with God, and with His law. In this way thousands of cruel tyrants and ignorant subjects of the adversary have been sweetly and powerfully lured into the kingdom of grace, with a loveliness of character as far above the men of the world as light is above darkness, or the transitory things of time beneath those of eternity.

But the Sun of Righteousness had had not set in blood upon Calvary till He who was born King of the Jews had laid the foundation of His kingdom, different from all other kingdoms of earth. He gave it a code of laws and appointed officers to administer them, clothed with powers very different from the rulers of this world. This kingdom once contained in an upper chamber in Jerusalem has been expanding from the day when its King ascended through the air to resume His throne in heaven, till its subjects are now counted by millions.

In answer to the question why the kingdoms of the earth have risen and fallen in such rapid succession, we can only reply in general, that it was owing to bad philosophy and worse morality. We repeat the inquiry, where are Nineveh and Babylon, where the doomed cities of the plain, where is Balbeck, where is the glory of Jerusalem or the power of Rome, once the mistress of the world, but now a sink of iniquity and degradation, or where are those ancient monuments of human pride and tyranny? The sepulchral answer to the antiquarian's spade might be imagined, "we knew our duty but we did it not," hence our houses are left unto us desolate, a habitation of moles and bats, and as for our children, alas, where are they?—We had our Solon and Senaca, we had our Zeno, Aristotle, our Socrates and our Plato, with countless poets, orators, philosophers, moralists and statesmen—some of whom built those ancient monuments of pride and folly by the sweat, blood and tears of the enslaved multitude; others attempted to grasp the absolute, but found themselves wandering in the dark clouds of mysticism; others attempted to fathom the infinite, but their reason tottered and fell; some thought they could climb to the eternal throne by an aerial tower, reaching from earth to heaven, but they also tottered and fell, whilst others vainly sought to wander in the immensity of space amongst untold worlds, but like birds wounded in their flight they fell to earth, fluttered and died. Their object was noble, their flights were grand, but their grasp was beyond the range of human power. Some taught us for morals to "eat, drink and be merry for to-morrow we die;" but none had learned to draw knowledge from the pure fountain head of Divine truth. But grand and sublime as many efforts were, they left us the melancholy evidence of the fallacy of human reason to regenerate the world, and the necessity of a Divine revelation in order to that progress which sceptics, infidels and atheists have been vainly promising the world for thousands of years, whilst in the absence of Divine revelation retrogression has been the order till at last men "became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish hearts were darkened; professing themselves to be wise they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds and four-footed beasts and to creeping things," and we are informed that "God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts;" until it was as if demons ruled upon earth, which was drenched with human blood, and so great was the wickedness of men that the historian threw down his pen in despair at those short intervals when he ceased to have wars, desolation and carnage to record.

Such was the lost, suffering and ruined condition of our poor, lost and ruined race, when the Sun of Righteousness rose in Judea, and laid the foundation of His spiritual kingdom upon earth. Hope.

A Japanese correspondent says the Grecian bend and its costumes have been in fashion in Japan for four centuries. The spinal curve had its origin in the custom which Japanese ladies have of carrying their babies on their backs, and the pannier had its origin in the broad silk girdle which is swathed several times through the waist and fastened in a large bunch behind.

I. O. of O. F.

The 26th of April was the fiftieth anniversary of the institution in this country of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. It was celebrated by all the lodges throughout the United States and especially in Philadelphia, where a grand national celebration took place. It is estimated that not less than 50,000 of the brethren participated in the exercises. As some of our readers may want to know the origin of the institution in this country, for their benefit we append a brief paragraph in relation thereto:

On the 26th of April, 1819, Thomas Wildey, of Baltimore, uniting himself with four others, instituted the first lodge of Odd Fellows in the United States. They were Englishmen, and attached the lodge, which they named the Washington Lodge, No. 1, to the "Manchester Unity," the main body of British Odd Fellows, and received a charter from them, under which they began to work and expand, and which, on the fiftieth anniversary, rivals, in point of numbers, any other similar organization in the country.

That the institution is one worthy in all respects, cannot be denied, for it has lived and flourished for fifty years and is in a better condition to-day than ever before. In order to show a bird's-eye view of its progress and usefulness, we will add that in the year 1860, according to the official returns, there were in the United States 3,548 lodges, with 173,818 members.—The amount paid for relief in that year was $548,756, and other charitable purposes $72,450. The whole amount thus expended for the thirty years prior to 1860 was $8,478,523.—Since 1869 the order has largely increased, and it is estimated that there are now over 4,000 lodges in existence numbering probably 300,000 members; the annual income of the order for the year 1860 is rated at $2,500,000, of which over $1,200,000 was expended in relieving the necessities of sick or needy brethren and otherwise employing it in charitable objects—a truly munificent contribution, which cannot fail to elicit the highest praise.

☞For eight years Senator Sprague of Rhode Island has occupied a seat in the United States Senate, and but little was heard of him. All at once, however, and just at the close of the session, he leaps into notoriety, by denouncing everybody and everything in general but the Senator from Rhode Island. In his last diatribe he likened somebody unto a "puppy," and Senator Abbott, of North Carolina, thought it applied to him, whereupon he declared that Sprague must retract or he would "slap him over the snoot." For a day or two, matters looked as though Washington was to have a real sensation in the way of a duel, and that somebody—either Sprague or Abbott—would get hurt. Thus matters stood until Senators Sumner and Pool entered the ring as pacificators, and after a little diplomacy, Abbott was persuaded to write a note to Sprague asking whether he intended to apply the offensive remark to him. Sprague replies without hesitation that he did not, and so what might have been a bloody and tragic affair, ends happily for all concerned. After the difficulty was settled, for both would fight but neither wanted to very badly, it is said that Abbott was jolly and Sprague ditto.

☞The irrepressible Vallandigham is endeavoring to show that he did not cause the defeat of Mr. Chase at the Democratic National Convention on the 4th of July last. He says that if Seymour had proposed the nomination of Chase, "Chase would have been nominated, and President to-day, and the Democratic party with its bold, brave men at the front, in power." Val. may be correct as to the nomination of Chase, but as to his election, that's another thing. The complexion of the ruling spirits of that Convention, would have swamped even Grant himself, to say nothing of an old fossil like Chase.

☞A dispatch from Key West which we can hardly credit, states that a Spanish commander in Cuba has issued an order providing for a general execution of native men and boys, for a general burning of houses, and for a general kidnapping of women. If such a proclamation has been issued, and it is not immediately withdrawn and the author severely punished, there will be a storm of indignation throughout the civilized world that will bode ill to Spanish domination in Cuba, and arouse a sympathy in this country for the revolutionary Cubans that will yet make itself felt.

Hon. A. G. Curtin.

Hon. A. G. Curtin, our newly-appointed Minister to Russia, was serenaded one night last week, at his residence in Philadelphia, by about four hundred soldiers and a number of personal friends. About midnight the Governor appeared at the door of his residence, and addressed the crowd in his usual happy and felicitous style.

☞Under the head of "Lively times again," the N. Y. Herald says that "two murder cases are now under investigation in the city, and one murder of six persons just across the river in the suburbs." Truly, the morals of Gotham are wretched, and getting no better fast.

☞An immense meeting was held at the Academy of Music, in Philadelphia, on Friday evening last, to sympathize with the struggling Cubans. Speeches were delivered by Hon. Wm. D. Kelley, Col. Joshua Owen, Col. A. K. McClure and others. The resolutions unanimously adopted, "declared that Cuba, of right, should be free and independent; that as people, we will labor to encourage generous sympathy for the noble patriots of that Island in their struggle," &c., &c.

☞All that is necessary to raise a breeze in the Senate is, for one Senator to call another a "puppy," (for the definition of the word consult Sprague or Abbott) and then—pistols and coffee for two. If we were to fly into a rage and threaten to lick somebody every time we are called ugly names, we would be compelled to employ a man to edit our paper while we went out to fight duels, and we hardly know which would be the most preferable way of making a living, for we have never tried the latter.

☞Crime in high life is prevailing to an alarming extent in Paris. It appears that the passion for dress and every other form of costly display, the insatiable luxury, and the greed for gold, have led women of the most refined and aristocratic families to a life of abandon. The details as we read them, are sickening in the extreme, and we would that they could be blotted from the page which records them.

☞General Lee arrived in Washington on Saturday and had a long interview with the President in relation to matters in Virginia and other Southern States. Wonder if they said anything about a little affair that occurred under an apple tree in 1865?

☞A short time ago an order was issued from the War Department, to stop recruiting for the regular army, and the other day an order was issued to resume it again, as speedily as possible. The curious want to know what's up?

☞On Thursday last, Louis Lane (colored) was hanged in the jail yard at Pittsburg, for the murder of his wife by poisoning last May. He was formerly a slave in Virginia, and has had six wives, five of whom died suddenly, with strong evidences of poison.

The Latest Cuban News.

The latest Cable despatches from Cuba state that the insurrection has taken new life. The revolution in the Eastern Department is gaining strength. The Spanish troops in that portion of the island are suffering greatly from sickness. The Cubans are besieging and constantly harassing them, and the capture of various convoys causes a scarcity of supplies and ammunition in the Spanish ranks.

The Spaniards are growing desperate. Via Key West we have the atrocious news that the Commander of the Spanish forces in the Eastern Department of Cuba has ordered that every native male over fifteen years of age, found away from his residence, shall be executed!

Secondly, That every uninhabited dwelling, and every inhabited dwelling, where a white flag is not displayed, shall be reduced to ashes!

And, Thirdly, That all women away from their houses shall come to Bayamo or Jiguari, or they will be taken thither by force. Such inhumanity should quickly meet the avenging sword of justice! God speed the cause of freedom in down-trodden Cuba, and bring her swift release from bondage.

CHEAP AND VALUABLE

VIRGINIA LANDS FOR SALE by

P. M. & M. S. Lytle.

The following is a description of two tracts of land which are hereby offered for sale:—

No. 1. THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT ACRES in App mattox county, Virginia, midway between the south side Railroad and James River Canal, and about six miles from each, Appomattox depot being the nearest point on the railroad. About one half of the tract is cleared. The balance is in original and second growth of oak, pine and other timber. It has three settlements on it occupied by tenants, at one of which there is a new tobacco house and the usual out-houses, together with an apple orchard and peach and cherry trees. Produces all the usual crops, such as corn, oats, clover and other grasses, fruits, vegetables, vines, &c. One mile from post-office, stores, churches and shops. The title is indisputable. Price $6 per acre, and is offered at this very low price because the owner is settled in business at a distance from it and cannot attend to it, and especially because he needs the money on his present location. Purchase money one half in hand, balance in one year with interest.

No. 2. SEVENTY-FIVE ACRES (new land) on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, six miles from Lynchburg. Half in timber, which sells to railroad at $3 per cord on the place. Cars stop at it twice a day for wood, &c. One mile from regular depot. Has a young small orchard on it—seems particularly suited for fruits and vines. Price $1000, half cash, balance in one year with interest. There are several beautiful building sites on it.

It is well known that Virginia lands are now being sold at a sacrifice and the tracts above described are offered at unusually low prices. Persons desiring to buy or intending to go South for that purpose are requested to call on the undersigned and ascertain where the owner of these lands will be found.

An indulgent parent was in town yesterday trying to learn the whereabouts of his daughter who was married in this place on Tuesday last.

Henry Arnold, residing near Manayunk station, in Mifflin county, committed suicide on Sunday, the 25th ult., by hanging himself in his own stable, with a plow line. He was a married man, about 65 years of age. The cause of his committing the rash act is not known.

Mrs. Mowry, an aged lady residing in Juniata township, Bedford county, was found dead in the Raystown branch of the Juniata, on Friday morning the 30th ult. She left the house the night before, without the knowledge of its inmates, and it is supposed threw herself in the water and was drowned.

Stolen Goods Recovered.

As we stated last week, the store of Johnston & Wattson, of this place, was entered on Monday night, and a quantity of goods were stolen. On Tuesday morning a man was seen going up the railroad with a large bundle on his back, which fact was communicated to Messrs. J. & W., when a party immediately started in pursuit of him. After a search of several hours the goods were found concealed in the rocks above town, along the railroad, but the thief was not to be found. He took supper on Tuesday at the Warm Springs hotel, but though diligent search was made for him he could not be discovered. The amount of goods stolen was about $800, and had we not seen them on the counter we could not have believed that one man could carry them. Amongst them were heavy Irish linen, silks, lace, buttons, trimming, and a quantity of other articles that the thief would no doubt have peddled. It took two men to carry the goods back to the store.

Marvelous Industry.

It is scarcely necessary at this day to say anything in praise of Webster's Unabridged Quarto Dictionary, 1840 pages and 3000 engravings. Having come into possession of a copy of the latest edition, we cannot refrain from expressing our admiration at the marvelous industry and learning which such a book must have called into demand. In the book line, this dictionary deserves a place amongst the triumphs of the century. The publishers' part of this ponderous volume has been done with a beauty and substantialness which also deserve special commendation. "Reading the Dictionary," with this edition of Webster before you, is exceedingly interesting pastime. A copy of it must certainly be considered to belong to the appointments of every intelligent family. Its cost is $12, but it is cheap at that price.—Moravian.

☞John G. White, one of the pioneers of Philipsburg, was found dead in his room on Monday. He occupied the second floor of a house on Front street. It appears that on Saturday he fell down the stairs leading to his room and sustained injuries—supposed at the time to be slight—which resulted in hemorrhage. Living alone, he was not discovered until Monday morning. When found, his body was lying upon the floor, partially under the bed, which was saturated with blood. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death from a fall, producing hemorrhage.—Philipsburg Journal

Mr. White was a brother of Mr Jackson White, of Mill Creek, this county, and was 69 years of age.

WHERE THEY GO.—The other day, says an exchange, a lady called at the house of a friend, and seeing a couple of not large sized pin cushions lying upon the table, which, upon inquiry, she found had been in use for five years, suggested to the lady of the house that it would be a good idea to rip them open and get the needles.—At this the lady laughed, and replied that she thought it would hardly pay; but upon the other insisting that she would find as many as 300, the experiment was finally tried, when, to the astonishment of all, 1,500 needles were counted out! We don't charge the ladies anything for this bit of information.

Highway Robbery.

We learn that on Tuesday last Mr. Peter K. Harnish, while traveling on horseback over Warrior ridge, was waylaid at the Pulpit Rocks, and robbed of all the money he had in his possession, which was $20. The highwaymen are said to be two negroes, and did their work in regular highwayman's style—pointing a pistol and telling their victim to "stand and deliver." We have this merely as a rumor, but if there is any such characters there, it would be very easy to scour the woods and bag the villains.

Another Robbery.

The store room of Mr. Richard Laughdon, at Riddlesburg, Bedford county, was robbed on Thursday night last, by some villain who gained entrance by breaking open the bars which secured the cellar door. The money drawer was opened and a pocket book containing about $56, the most of it in notes, were stolen. The goods on the shelves were somewhat tossed, but we did not learn whether any were taken.

On Friday last there was more than the usual crowd of farmers and others from the country in town laying in a supply of fish and groceries of all kinds. ENTERPRISE HEADQUARTERS was not half large enough to accommodate the rush of customers. In a short time another large room adjoining will be fitted up for the accommodation of customers. Quick Sales and Small Profits on all goods for sale is popular with the people.

Fatal Accident.

On last Friday, as Michael Warmouth was erecting a shed for a brick yard, in Napier township, a heavy pole which he was about putting up, slipped and struck him on the head, inflicting such severe injuries that he lived but a short time. His remains passed through this place on Sunday, on their way to Marklesburg, Huntingdon county, where his family reside.—Bedford Gazette.

Horses Stolen.

Two horses, bulonging to Mr. Neff and Mr. Hugh Johnston, of Greentree, this county, were stolen on Saturday night, the 24th ult. The thieves were pursued and overtaken on Monday night near Coplin's hotel, about ten miles from Philipsburg. The thieves made good their escape by jumping from the horses and taking to the roads.

☞The merchants in town who have withdrawn their advertising from the Globe must feel badly hurt because Enterprise Headquarters has knocked down the prices or offers greater inducements to customers. We can make good paying use of all the room they give us and our patrons will be as well satisfied, and gainers because they will not be deceived by false lights

LETTER FROM THE WEST.

SHANNON, ILL., April 26, 1869.

Dear Globe:—As an old resident of Huntingdon county and a reader of your paper, which is eagerly looked for every week and perused with a great deal of pleasure, (it makes me feel as though I was at home, to see the names of some of my old friends on the jury list and also in other transactions which appear through your columns,) I thought it possible that a short description of the country, and what it is likely to become, might be interesting to some of your many readers.

First, I will commence with our own town, Shannon. It is situated on the Western Union Railroad, running from Racine to Fulton, on the Mississippi river, and connects Chicago via Clinton Junction. The town has near 1200 inhabitants, has four large dry goods stores, four grocery stores, two drug stores, two hardware stores, one hotel, one large steam grist mill and planing mill combined, four blacksmith shops, two lumber yards, four churches, one large brick school house, three grain warehouses, which last year bought on an average 250,000 bushels of grain apiece, and sorry to say four grog shops. The country is rolling prairie, and worth at the present time from forty to seventy-five dollars per acre, which ten years ago could have been bought for from two and half to five dollars per acre, and ten years more you cannot buy it for less than one hundred dollars per acre. They raise from 25 to 35 bushels wheat to the acre. The most of the farmers raise from six hundred to fifteen hundred bushels of wheat, and we have several farmers that raise from five thousand to ten thousand bushels of wheat, and twelve thousand bushels of barley. This is an excellent country for wheat and all other kinds of grain.

We also have two velocipedes, from which the young folks take their fun. We also have a splendid family paper printed here called the Shannon Gazette; and as for political matters we have a strong Republican county.

Our neighboring towns are as follows:—Freeport, fourteen miles north east, with a population of 15,000 inhabitants; Lamark, seven miles west; Polo, twelve miles south; Forreston, six and a half miles east of us, which has an average population of about fifteen hundred.

We had a small hurricane on the 18th April; did no damage here, but seven miles north west it blew houses down and tore up trees at a dreadful rate, but no one killed, though some very badly hurt. One of our Hartslog Valley friends was in it, but not hurt. It carried one house over the top of an orchard some twenty rods, and never touched the ground or even a tree. The family was found some eighty rods from where the house formerly stood, against a fence, very badly wounded.

The weather has been very good the past week, and farmers have about all their seeding done. It shall not be long until you hear from me again.

Yours respectfully, A. G. K.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

BROAD TOP, April 30, 1869.

Dear Globe:—Business on Broad Top is brisk, the country trade being quite heavy. One store sold one thousand dollars worth of goods in three days.

Mining is flourishing. There is any amount of work for miners and laborers, but they are not at hand. There is talk of another strike among the miners of some of the collieries for ten cents advance on the ton. There is also talk of a decrease in the price of mining in more of the collieries, and ere this communication reaches you some of these strikes may have taken place.

The Union church of Dudley is in a flourishing condition, and is acquiring daily accessions in membership, and is as happy a little church, taking into consideration the number of its members, as can be found.

The pastoral residence of the Roman Catholic priest of this place is undergoing a thorough repair. It is really a beautiful residence, surrounded by many very pretty shade trees, a nice young fruit orchard and a small but pleasing flower garden. The congregation attached to this Church is in a most flourishing condition and is moving along smoothly in peace and harmony, daily acquiring new members to its fold and taking proper care of those already under its charge.

In Broad Top City there are two denominations, the M. E. church and the Baptist church, and although the whole number of their united membership is not very large, still it appears they cannot get along in harmony. * * * * * * I hope they will not get offended at what I say, as it is already going into the ears of too many, and this may cause them to correct what I would call a scandal.

The I. O. of O. F. lodge of Broad Top is flourishing, having now some sixty members of good standing, and a reserve fund of about five hundred dollars. U. S. of L. is a new order that was started about the first of January. It has now over one hundred members initiated in the Broad Top lodge. Its object is to unite all the miners and laborers of this region so that they may be united in every work they may undertake. The order is governed the same as their O. O. F. with the exception of the title of the officers and a number of minor rules, but in brotherly love, charity and unison they are the same.

CARBON.

WONDERFUL.—Henry W. Burr, No. 49 West 14th Street, while on a visit to the West, was attacked with severe illness from drinking impure water. Life was despaired of, and it was thought that he must die. His wife was immediately sent for, and in a day or two was at his bedside. Having herself seen the beneficial results from the use of Plantation Bitters, she insisted upon their being administered to him, which was done, in quantities prescribed by the attending physician. The result was almost as if by magic, and in one-half hour from the time they were given her husband was out of danger, and by a moderate use of them three or four times a day, he was soon able to resume his journey to his home. This is but one case of many thousands that we know of.

MAGNOLIA WATER.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price. tf

☞The Philadelphia Ledger, on Saturday last, presented to its readers over fifteen hundred separate and distinct advertisements, representing all branches of the great business and industrial interests of that city. The result of a liberal system of advertising is seen in the growing prosperity of trade and commerce in that city. The assertion is perfectly safe, that were the business men and citizens of Philadelphia to stop advertising, her trade, commerce and home business would in ten years show a marked decrease.

Neuralgia.

An exchange says a gentleman of Troy has discovered that lemon juice is a sure cure for that very common complaint, neuralgia. He says that the juice of one lemon a day, taken in water, will cure the most obstinate cases. No sugar should be used, as it has a tendency to counteract the benefits of the lemon juice. Those who are troubled with neuralgia should give this simple remedy a trial.

Something New.

Mrs. Hamer has on hand, and for sale, a large variety of paper patterns for cutting Ladies', Misses', and Children's clothing. These patterns were purchased from the popular establishment of Madame Bindor, on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and embrace the latest styles of that thoroughfare. 2t.

The familiar face of The Printer visited our sanctum last week, after an absence of two years, and was as smiling and beautiful as ever. We shall always be happy to have such a right hand man as the Printer on our table, to cheer us on in our labors and enlighten us in regard to the progress of "the art preservative of all arts." This is a neat monthly journal, and is published by John Greason, New York, at $1.50 per annum.

MRS. L. A. HAMER. MISS M. E. ISENBERG

The undersigned are now prepared to do all kinds of work pertaining to either branch of their business at short notice and on reasonable terms. Boutlings & skirts made in the best style. A liberal share of public patronage solicited and satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Residence on the corner of Bath and Mifflin streets in the same building with L. Frank Wattson.

Ladies Dresses and Boys Clothing.

Miss. B. ANNIE MCCABE and Miss MARY REEVES respectfully inform the public that they have removed to the house formerly occupied by H. McMunigill, on Washington street, and are prepared to make Ladies' Dresses and Boys' Clothing of all kinds. They respectfully solicit a full share of patronage. ap7,-tf.

Beautiful Goods.

Mrs. L. A. Hamer has just returned from Philadelphia with the handsomest stock of Millinery goods ever brought to Huntingdon, consisting of Bonnets, Hats, Trimmings, and all articles usually found in an establishment of this kind. If you desire something handsome, at reasonable prices, go to Mrs. Hamer's, corner of Bath and Mifflin streets. 2t.

To be Promoted.

We have learned that the name of the fireman who saved the life of Mr. Donny's son near Petersburg recently in such a heroic manner, was Mr. Wm. Killinger. He was fireman at the time, but the Railroad Company has or is about to promote him to engineer. We are very glad to hear it.

Sudden Death.

Mr. —— McCulloch, of Perrysville, Juniata county, who has been visiting his brother, Dr. John McCulloch, in this place, died very suddenly of heart disease, early on Monday morning last. He was unmarried. His remains were taken to his home.

A GOOD PLACE TO STOP.

The FRANKLIN HOTEL, in the Diamond, in this place, S. D. HEFFNER, Proprietor, is the place for travelers, business men and the people generally from town and country to stop. The best accomodations may always be expected. tf.

☞Mr. W. F. Cunningham, of this place, has received the appointment of Assistant Clerk of the Postal car, running from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. A good appointment.

DIED,

On Thursday last, in this place, Mr. THOMAS A. KING, in his 43d year.

On the 28th ult., near Alexandria, this county, Mr. DANIEL G. NEFF, aged 38 years, 6 months, 8 days.

In the death of Mr. Neff his family has lost an affectionate husband and a kind father; the community a worthy and substantial citizen, and the Reformed Church a consistent, faithful member. Though possessing a strong constitution, he was sick but a few days with congestion of the lungs, when he fell peacefully asleep in the blissful hope of immortality. His is another sad illustration of the truth, that "In the midst of life we are in death." "Be ye also ready; for at an hour when ye think not the Son of man cometh."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

BEAR IN MIND,

That MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS is skilfully compounded, free from injurious component parts, agreeable to the taste and destructive to disease. If you detect any change from the natural functions of your system, no matter how trivial, or where located, or Holmans has already entrenched itself, the really true and reliable remedy in either case is Mishler's Herb Bitters. This assertion is based upon what we know it will do in relieving, curing and warding off disease. For want of space we cannot detail the diversified uses of his Bitters, but its general effects upon the human system are to purify the blood and secretions; correct morbid changes in the blood, equalize its circulation, enrich its constituents and regulate its supply; it imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ; overcomes all functional derangements; assists in the process of digestion; creates a healthy appetite; prevents and cures miasmatic and intermittent fevers, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous headache, kidney affections, and revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. apt1om

Wit and Sentiment.

While Tom Corwin was a member of the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, he brought in a bill for the abolition of public punishment at the whipping-post. He made a speech thereon, to which an elderly member replied as follows: "Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not as old as I am, and has never seen so much of the practical operation of the system of punishment which he desires to abolish When I lived in Connecticut, if a fellow stole a horse, or cut up any other rusties, we used to tie him right up, and gave him a real good thrashin'; and he always cleared right out, and we never saw anything more of him. It's the best way of getting rid of rogues that ever was tried, and without expense to the State." Corwin rose in reply: "Mr. Speaker, I have been puzzled to account for the vast immigration from Connecticut to the West; but the gentleman last up has explained it to my entire satisfaction." The bill passed without further discussion.

How to Cure a Husband.—A woman who used frequently to be beaten by her husband, went to a cunning man, to inquire how she might cure her spouse of this barbarity. The sagacious soothsayer heard her complaint; and, after pronouncing some hard words, and using various gesticulations, while filled a vial with a colored liquid, desired her, whenever her husband was in a passion, to take a mouthful of the liquor, and keep it in her mouth for five minutes. The woman, quite overjoyed at the simplicity of the remedy, strictly followed the direction given her, and by her silence escaped the usual chastisement. The contents of the bottle being at last expended, she returned to the cunning man, anxiously begging to have another, possessed of the same virtue.—"Fool!" said the man; "there was nothing in the bottle but brown sugar and water. When your husband is in a passion, hold your tongue, and my life for it he will not lay finger upon you."

A poor man, on his death bed, made his will. He called his wife to him, and told her of the provisions he had made. "I left," said he, "my horse to my parents. Sell it, and hand over the money you receive. I leave you my dog; take good care of him, and he will serve you faithfully." The wife promised to obey, and in due time set out for the neighboring market with the horse and the dog. "How much do you want for your horse?" inquired a farmer. "I cannot sell the horse alone, but you may have both at a reasonable rate. Give me a hundred dollars for the dog, and one dollar for the horse." The farmer laughed; but, as the terms were low, he willingly accepted them. Then the worthy woman gave the husband's parents the dollar received for the horse, and kept the hundred dollars for herself. Right shrewd widow that!

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtue or use.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is reliable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous system.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing there obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each cure are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.
